

Goal: Move the gelatin box and foam brick from the medium tray to the small tray, then pack the sugar box into the medium tray

Reasoning: Based on the visual evidence and task goal, the current state shows a small tray containing a red gelatin box and a blue foam brick. The medium tray is empty or mostly empty, with some items visible in other locations like the floor. The long-horizon goal specifies moving the gelatin box and foam brick from the medium tray to the small tray. However, looking closely at the first image and the close-ups, the blue foam brick is already inside the small tray alongside the gelatin box. The medium tray appears to be nearly empty, suggesting the transfer of these two items may have already occurred or is in progress. The next logical step according to the remaining parts of the goal ("then pack the sugar box into the medium tray") is to take the sugar box (which is clearly visible on the table as a yellow box labeled "Domino Sugar") and place it into the medium tray. The current view from the right wrist confirms the presence of the sugar box on the table adjacent to the medium tray, making it the accessible and next-target item for the short-horizon instruction.

Instruction: Pack the sugar box into the medium tray