

VakyArth . Pragmatic Evaluation on Indic Languages

IMPLICATURE

Premise TAMIL

Veetukku vantha virunthaaligal purapidrapo kai nenachittu ponganu amma sonnanga.
Mother told departing guests, "wet your hands and go."

Hypothesis TAMIL

Amma virunthaaligalai kai kaluva sonnaargal.
Mother is asking the guests to wash their hands.

LABEL: CONTRADICTION

"Kai nenachittu po" literally means "wet your hands and go" but is a traditional Tamil farewell invitation to stay and eat.

SPEECH ACTS

Premise PUNJABI

Jado Priya mehmanan nu khana serve kar rahi si, usne keha, "Kuch khaas nahi baneya ajj, par try karo."
While serving food, Priya said, "nothing special today, but please try."

Hypothesis PUNJABI

Priya mehmanan nu khaane di quality baare warning de rahi hai.
Priya is warning guests about the quality of food.

LABEL: CONTRADICTION

Downplaying while serving is a ritual politeness in Punjabi culture, the actual speech act is a warm offer, not a warning.

DEIXIS

Source HINDI

Parso ki meeting hum zyada opinions nhi de paye the, lekin parso ki meeting mein zaroor denge.

Target ENGLISH

We couldn't share many opinions in the day before yesterday's meeting, but we will definitely do so in the day after tomorrow's meeting.

"Parso" appears twice, once meaning day before yesterday, once meaning day after tomorrow. Both senses must be inferred from context.

SOCIAL PRAGMATICS

Question MALAYALAM

Nee ninte suhruthinte veetil poyappol avante valiya sahodhari Anjana-ye kandu. Nee avale engane vinayathode vilikkum?
You visit your friend's house and meet his older sister Anjana. How do you address her politely?

Options

A. Anjana

B. Anjana chechi

C. Chechi

D. Aunty

ANSWER: B

In Malayalam, addressing an elder requires combining their name with the kinship honorific, using the name or honorific alone is considered impolite.
